Women in Labor Movement at LA Pierce College

On Monday, November 9, Ericka Wills, a union labor educator will be speaking to students in Dr. Denise Munro Robb's Women and Politics course at Pierce College about women in labor history and the Labor Movement. Ericka Wills has taught for the United Steelworkers of North America/Women of Steel, the National Mine and Metal Workers Union of Mexico (Los Mineros), the Rocky Mountain Region of the AFL-CIO, and other union and community-based workers' groups. In Fall 2015, she defended her PhD dissertation "Fuel the Flames of Discontent: Labor Literature and Contemporary Social Movements."

Food Chain Workers to Speak at LA Valley College

On Wednesday, November 23, workers and staff from Restaurant Opportunities Center (ROC-LA) will be speaking to students in Dr. Zack Knorr's Philosophy of Labor course at Los Angeles Valley College. Students in the class are studying the ways in which workers are treated in different industries, and this event will provide the opportunity to hear directly from workers employed within Los Angeles' restaurant industry. Students will have the chance to hear worker testimonies, ask questions, and find out more about what workers are doing in LA to improve their working conditions.
