Voters Approve Measure CC

Bond measure will upgrade nine Los Angeles Community College District campuses

(LOS ANGELES) Thanks to the voters' passage of Measure CC yesterday, the Los Angeles Community College District (LACCD) can now invest in critically-needed upgrades to each of its nine colleges, providing nearly 250,000 students with better job training and educational opportunities. Measure CC, a $3.3 billion bond measure to fund important upgrades to LACCD college facilities, passed with 75.32% percent of the vote.

"We are grateful to the voters who chose to invest in our students so that they will have better learning opportunities and can go on to strengthen our overall economy," said Scott J. Svonkin, president of the LACCD Board of Trustees. "On behalf of the board, I want to thank the voters for their generosity and their trust in us as we work to improve each of our community colleges."

About the Los Angeles Community College District

The Los Angeles Community College District (LACCD) is the largest community college district in the country, spanning 36 cities in Los Angeles County and serving nearly 250,000 students per year at its nine colleges. Drawing 80 percent of its enrollment from historically underserved populations, LACCD offers affordable and accredited higher education that empowers students to transfer to four-year institutions, earn associate's degrees, and obtain training and job skills that open doors to lifelong opportunities.
